SANCTIFIED CHURCH OF CHINCOTEAGUE.

The Queer Antics of a Colony of Delawarian Squatters on an Eastern-Shore Island.

[Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.] CHINCOTEAGUE ISLAND, April 12 .-Erief mention has been made in this correspondence of a new and novel religious sect that has sprung up here within the last year. They call themselves Christ's Holy Sanctified Church of Chincoteague Island, No. 1. All of them came here from Sussex county. Del., and were originally members of the Northern Methodist Church, from which they separated about one year ago. They all claim to be sanctified and entirely free from sin, and they say that all who are not sanctified will be hope lessly lost. According to their doctrine those who profess to be Christians but are not sanctified are no better than the most outrageous sinner or blasphemous infidel. Though there are four regularly-ordained ministers on this island these people will not permit any one o them to celebrate the rite of matrimony between any of their followers or to bury their dead. LICENSE TO MARRY.

Some time ago they applied to Judge Gillet, of the County Court, and obtained from him license for an ignorant and fsnatical fellow named Workman to cele-brate matrimony between members of dealers in fertilizers. William Lynch, a man of similar character and ignorance, enjoys draft on Oher & Son, but having made with Workman the uncreviable reputa- his deposit for the day the swindler was tion of being a leader among these peo-ple. They live in the northern part of the island and have as little as possible to do with the native population. They have built a church in the midst of their settlement, costing several thousand dollars, where they have meetings every Sunday morning, afternoon, and night, and frequently every night in the week. Here they engage in the wildest and most finitatic capers, working themselves into such a frenzy of excitement that many of them fall exhausted on the floor. Their noisy devotions have frequently disturbed the religious exercises in the neighboring Methodist in Lynchburg for some years, trying church from which they withdrew, and several hundred alleged offenders, and more than once Lynch and Workman have been arranged before the local justices of the peace for disturbing religious

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Many of their customs savor of com-munion and sec alism and have more over subjected them to the charge of being a free-love community. According to a custom recently adopted among them, whenever a man dreams about any woman in the community, he immediately pays her a visit, and the two retire to a room, look themselves in, and soend the might in meditation, as they

The native population of the island and the respectable people that have moved there from other parts of the county are greatly scandalized by the practices of the sanctified sect, and they will doubtless take steps to inform the unthorities of the county concerning. KILLED BY A MOONSHINER A Deputy Marshal Shot by Patton Willis--- Candidates.

(Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.) CLINTWOOD, VA., April 11.—On Saturday Patton Willis, a young man of Ava, this county, carried a load of moon-shine whiskey across the Cumberland Monntain to supply his Kentucky customers, but a United States marshal, whose name your correspondent has not learned, interfered with the sale of the stuff. An altercation ensued between the two men and Willis drew his pistol and fired upon the marshal, the ball taking effect, and he died within a few hours. Willis made his escape, but it is said a number of Kentuckians are in the vicinity of Ava hunting for him, and if he is caught he may fare badly. He is a man of bad habits, and has been identified with the moonshiners for some time past.

POLITICAL. There is beginning to be some talk about the spring election in this com-munity. There are four candidates for the County- and Circuit-Court clerk-ship of this county--J. C. Counts. EAGLE-TOMCAT FIGHT. Feline Carried Up and Dropped by Bald-Headed Bird.

While two residents of Galena, Ill. were driving through Southern Wisconsin recently, they witnessed, near Arena, a fierce fight between a bald-headed eagle and a large tomeat, says the Montreal Star. The "proud bird of the mountains had attacked the cat while hunting in the field, and succeeded in fastening its talons into the animal's back, when the battle immediately began and was continued amid the screams of the eagle. It was a sort of catch-as-catch-could contest, and while it continued the feathers and for flew thick and fast. The cat was too heavy for the eagle to fly with, but it succeeded in raising it several times in the act, 100 feet or more at each effort; but the attempts to get away with its prey were futile, as the weight of the cat and its flerce struggle for life invariably brought the eagle to the ground again, where the battle was represted with nearly the agency the second again. epeated, with nearly the same result.

In the final bout, which took place on terra firma, the eagle threw up the sponge and flew laboriously across the river, while the cat, much worried, made tracks as rapidly as possible away from the scence of the battle.
